BRANDON CERVANTES

Production Fellow,
Los Angeles Dodgers
Senior - UC Santa Cruz

INTERNSHIP RECAP:

Brandon Cervantes was a Production Fellow with the LA Dodgers Productions team. He immersed himself in an environment where every day looked different. Depending on the part of the season, he could be found filming commercials, covering community events, shooting in-game footage, or editing content for the Dodger Vision boards. The variety gave him the chance to sharpen technical skills – like advancing in editing and beginning to learn After Effects – while also developing critical soft skills in communication, problem-solving, and networking.

While his time with LAD Productions deepened his passion for sports and video production, Brandon can use these transferable videography skills wherever his journey might take him, including possibly into another area he is passionate about: nature. He hopes to become a Video Producer, Camera Operator, or Journalist for National Geographic, combining his love of nature with his craft behind the camera.

BRANDON'S TIPS

Be eager and be consistent. Jobs and opportunities aren't going to fall into your lap so you have to make sure you're actively working towards your goals and building connections with people in every way possible.
